AUREA VINCULA

AUREA VINCULA I

For the past thirty-two years our school has had many different editorial staffs for the yearbook. Each year the staffs' ideas grew more innovative; their designs showed more creative initiative in the yearbook, with greater detail and better layouts than before. But one thing remained constant in every yearbook since 1951, and is again present in this yearbook. It is the title "Aurea Vincula."

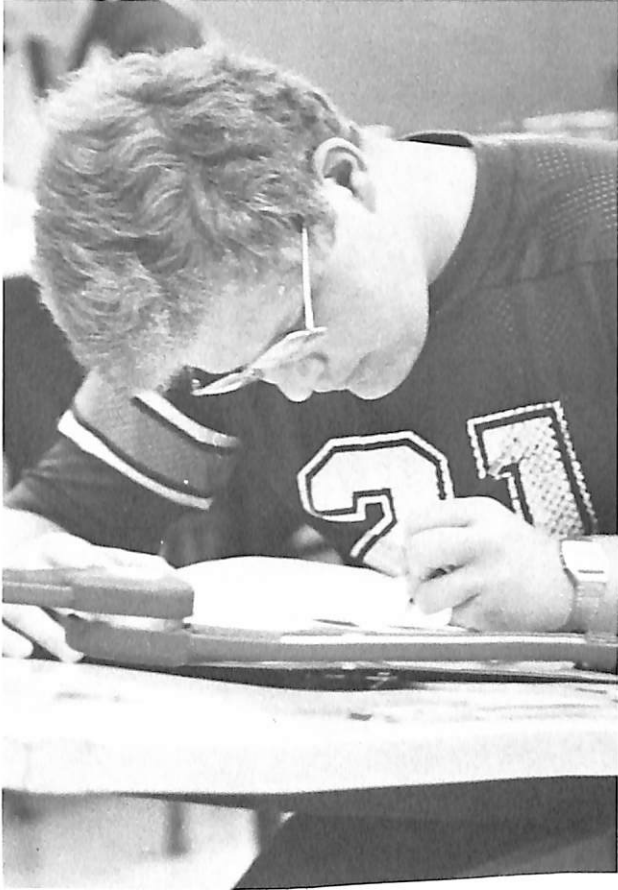

Many people have asked the question, "What does Aurea Vincula mean?" It took a great deal of time to find the answer to this simple question, mainly because Latin is no longer taught in our school, and the teachers are growing older and more forgetful. But with the aid of the secretaries, the original meaning was found.

"Aurea Vincula is the link between your school days and your future life, the link between you and your high school friends, fostered by your pride in our school, and nurtured by your determination and co-operation."

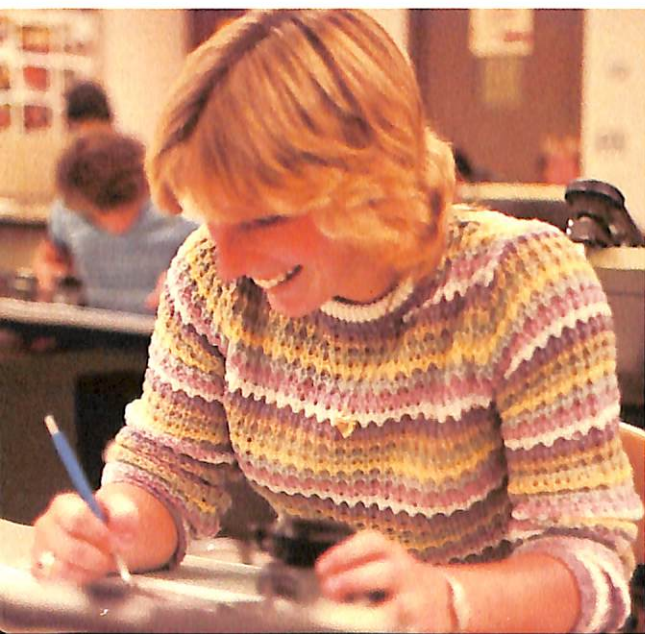

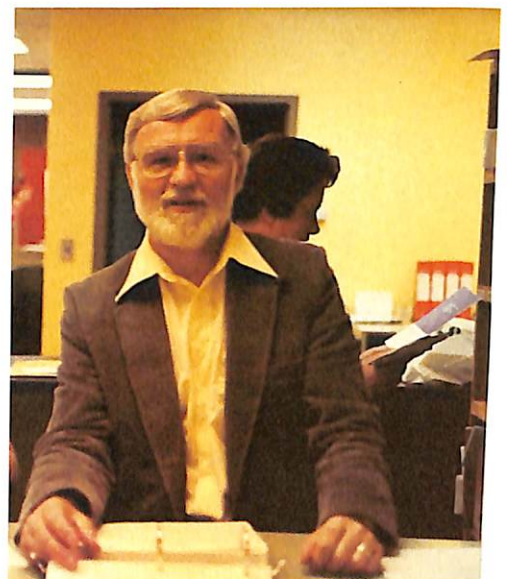

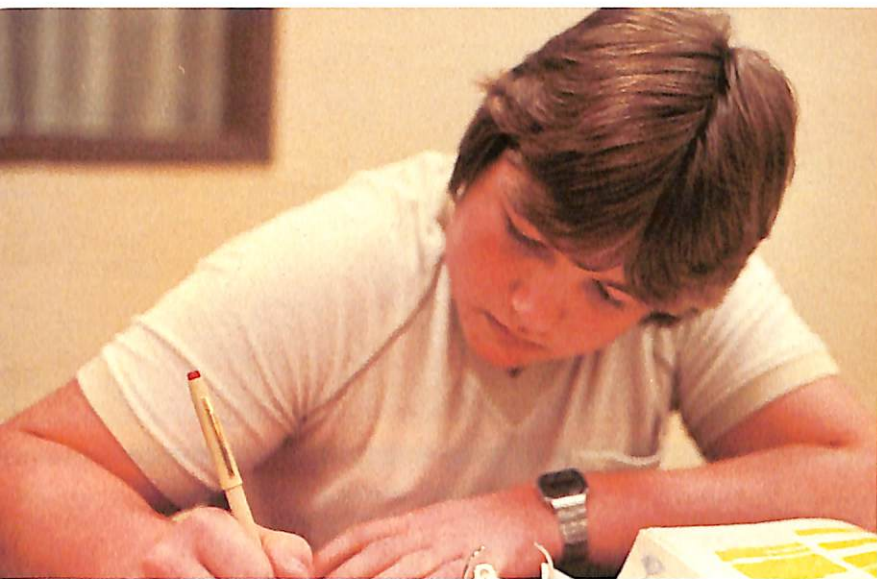

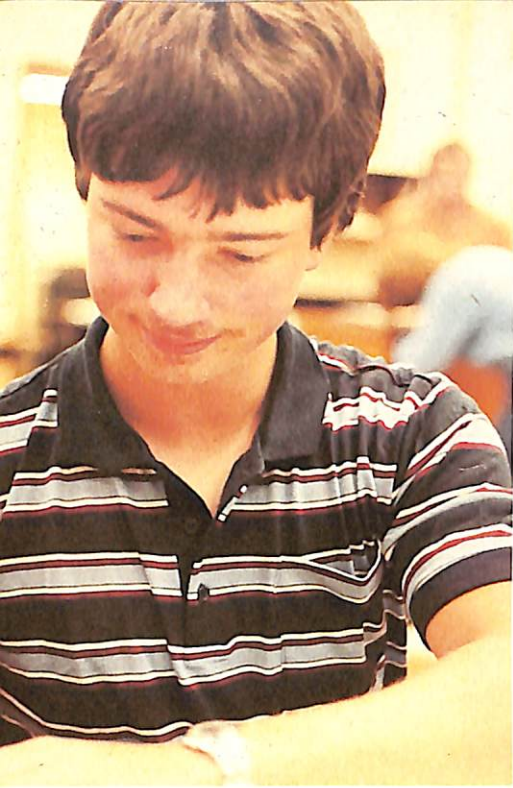

Many years from now, when we have forgotten all our math, grammar and chemistry, there will always be that "golden link" to our school days through Aurea Vincula.

The School Curling Bonspiel was a huge success. There were 16 teams competing and involved a total of 64 students as well as Mrs. Illman's great organization. After the final scores were tallied a House 1 team emerged victorious by 1 1/4 points over their nearest competitors. The winning team members were Bob Armstrong, skip; Kim Robb, third; Tom Adams, second; and Lori Stewardson at lead. The fierce competition and stragedy of the teams made for a fun and interesting experience for spectators. Too bad it wasn't televised!

SHAKY START, BUT FINE FINISH

After losing 2 games early in the year to Sarnia and a defeat in Schoolboy playdowns by Wallaceburg, the team rebounded. They won L.S.S.A.A. in two straight against a strong Northern team. Thus qualifying for W.O.S.S.A. in Glencoe. North Lambton then defeated Goderich in the opening match. Clinton fell victim to the North Lambton Squad as did Glencoe in the finals. In Hamilton, at the O.F.S.S.A. finals, Forest opened with a win against the Hamilton Tigers. Next was Forest's best game of the entire draw, however the stronger Manitoulin team went on to win (in fact they captured the gold medal). Forest rebounded to beat Milton the next game. Then took another loss only this time to Toronto's North York crew. They again jumped to their feet defeating Belleville and then Hawkesbury only to suffer another loss to Niagara Falls. They tied for 3rd at their second O.F.S.S.A. finals. Out of 16 teams, it was a job well done! The team members were: Bob Armstrong, skip; Bob Metcalfe, third; Jeff Catton, second; and Paul Kaempf, lead; coach, Jim Kaempf.

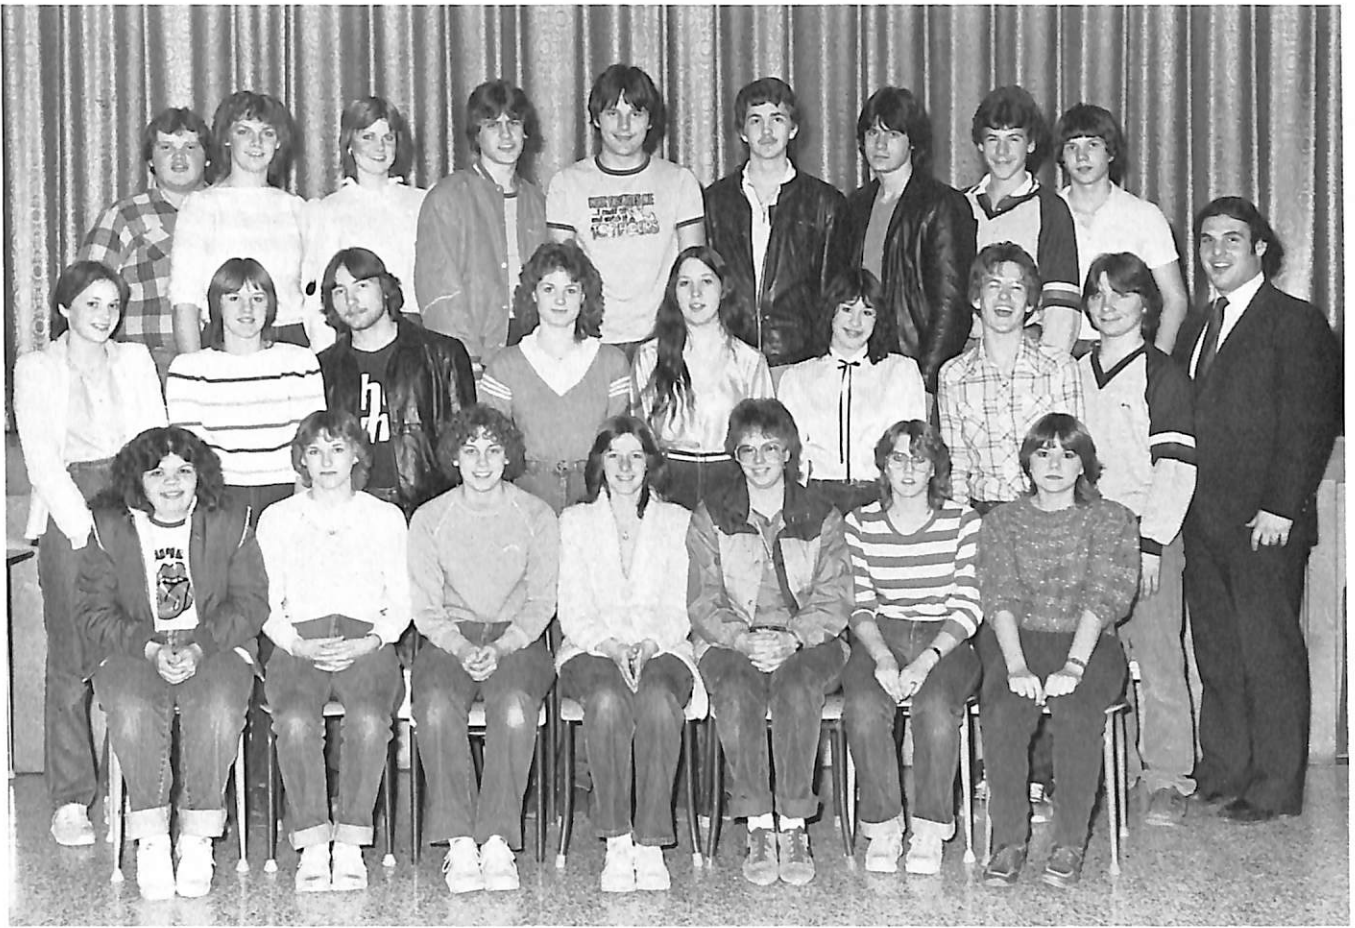

STILL COMPETITIVE

Competition is no stranger to this 23 year teacher at North Lambton. He has captured many victories during his years at North Lambton. Football, Basketball, Volleyball, Curling and Soccer are a few he talks of. It has been no secret though that he was happiest when coaching curling at Ontario Championship level as he did this year and the two years before. Many years ago while attending the University of Waterloo, he played vice on the team that took top honors at the Ontario Universities Championship. He was good then and through his efforts in coaching he has achieved 3 more showings in Ontario finals in the last three years. Thank-you Chief! It was an honour and a pleasure.

The Team
Bob, Bob, Jeff and Paul

THANK-YOU!

Everything in life has to rely on something else in order to survive, grow, and be successful. Without one the other would fail. In order for a yearbook to be successful it has to have advertising. Without the advertising the funding of a book would be impossible. On behalf of the yearbook club we would like to thank Mr. Boom and the advertising club for their continual support. Without the help of an organized group and an energetic teacher to "hit the streets" and collect sponsors a yearbook could not be produced. Thank-you for your support. Our hats are off to you!

DAVIS - STEWART SPILT

We have added a new flavour to the yearbook this year. Rather than having the principal and vice-principal give their messages, we have decided to dedicate a page to them and thank them for their co-operation in the school's ever needy spirit.

Mr. Stewart helps many misguided students every day, some who are late, some who are skipping, and there are some who are, of course, just mis-guided. His smile warms the student's hearts as they pass him in the hallway, all knowing that he is always there to help and protect them. He punishes those who are delinquent and praises those who achieve a goal. Although his years here are through he has touched a great many with his wit, wisdom, and guiding hand.

Mr. Davis is a man of few words, but has become revered by all. His authority and stature are to be admired. He always lends a helping hand to a needy person. His efficiency in the school has made school life simpler for the students as well as the teachers. His quiet and masterful techniques are qualities that we should all try to acquire.

Both Mr. Davis and Mr. Stewart are to be commended for their fine work and also for their great umpiring skills at the student-teacher baseball game. Our best wishes to both in the future and to Mr. Stewart's new position at S.C.I.T.S.

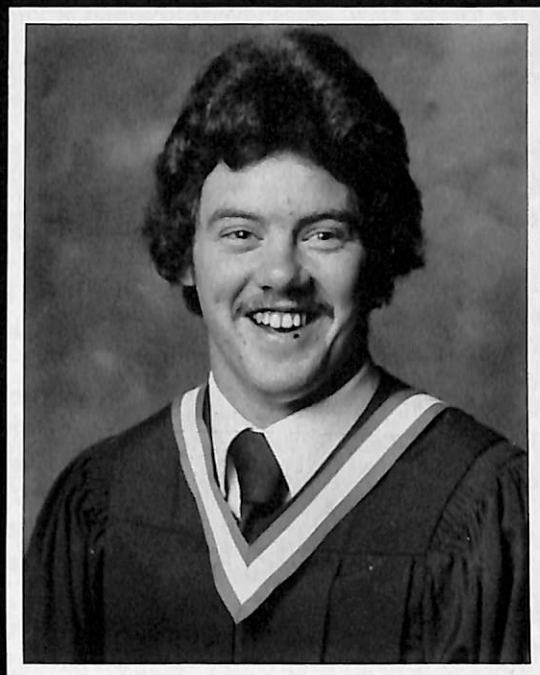

Sincerely
the Yearbook Staff on behalf of the students of North Lambton

Best Wishes to Class of '83

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

GREG HODGINS

Another school year has passed, and for some of us, this will be our last at North Lambton. We all leave with many memories both good and bad. I am sure we will miss North Lambton but hopefully this book will capture some of our memories.

As we move on either into the work force, or go off to college or university, we will be able to look back to bygone years and remember the good times shared with our many friends. I hope everyone has enjoyed the extra-curricular program offered and realize how valuable it is to making your high school years truly enjoyable and fulfilling.

I would like to take this opportunity to wish all the returning students and teachers good luck. A special thank-you goes to my executive, staff advisors and the rest of the council for their loyalty and hard work. Thank you also to my friends, old and new, and my teachers who made my five years at North Lambton the best they could have been anywhere.

Good luck,

Greg Hodgins
S.A.C. President

REFLECTIONS

Look in a mirror
Tell me what you see
A reflection or an image
Of what you should be.

The universe is like this
All rough, toughed and marred
But, to see its real beauty
The windows are barred.
Reflections, images
Tell me is it so?
What is happening to everything
Where did it all go?

Why can't I live
Where my mirror's image begins
I'll not sit on destruction
Like needles and pins.

The world could be better
If we look for that certain mirror
And live like we should live
Without any fear.

Laurie Craig

ODE TO MR. HUNT

Larry, the lamb
Was really a ham.
He was full of jokes and surprises
One atom he found
Buried deep in the ground.
It came in all shapes and all sizes.

One theory he knew
And believed to be true
That molecular shapes were like boxes.
But maybe, again,
They looked like a hen,
Or even, perhaps, like red foxes.

He made up a figure,
Then thought up one bigger -
A ball or a box or whatever -
To symbolize clearly
Both smartly and dearly
The shape of a molecule. Clever!

But the finishing touch,
Which was better by much,
Was a lamb made of styrofoam balls!
The kids, they all loved it,
In a small bag they shoved it,
And carried it far through the halls.

We now know the frame,
And can call it by name,
For molecular shapes of most functions.
They are made like a lamb
And called Sudershan!
How dangerous are such assumptions!

Anonymous to most but not the grade 13's CALCULUS and CHEMISTRY classes.

P.S. Thanks to Mrs. Elliot and Mr. Hunt for the explanation of molecules which has now been resolved for future generations.

REMEMBRANCE

I

Red. A bloody red. A political massacre ruled not by right and wrong, but by an arrogant mind, unforgiving in its ravings. Yet it went on. And on.

The boom of bombs blasted the area. Sounds loud enough to damage any ears. The scarred lands, with their war-wrought blemishes and the human-forged gashes, were strewn with the corpses of what had once been life. Many soldiers lay in a pool of mingled blood and dirt of filthy death. The stench would never be forgotten by the lucky. It was wretched enough to make even some of the stronger men sick.

But among all the fatalities, some had not been so lucky. Human limbs flung in an arrayed pattern told an ugly story. Some screamed, but above the ear-shattering explosions, no cry, no matter how loud it was, could be heard. Many could not scream, but the mental terror of realization showed in their eyes. Those who still had them.

And all who were there to see it, but still the blood flowed freely from their guns.

II

A flash of lightning illuminates the torrential sky. A relentless rain pounds upon the houses below. Floods of water flow threateningly around the houses. Crack after crack of lightning reveal the effects of the raging storm. Trees, houses, people. None are exempt from the havoc it has readed.

In a small cottage on the edge of town a young widow weeps in remembrance of just a few weeks earlier, when she had laughed, and kidded. But it was swept away by a brutal force which she could not understand. And this makes her cry even more. And the rain pounds on. Harsh and continuously it falls upon the defenceless village below.

In the next room a young boy is staring at the ceiling, trying to understand the news. His mind wonders why daddy will not come home anymore. It doesn't make sense, but he knows that his dad's love was real and he must have a good reason for staying away. But a tear trickled down his face, and the rain outside continued to fall.

The rain dissipate quickly, almost, it seemed, simultaneously with the raising of the sun. The sun came up, but it was still obscured by the clouds in the sky and the smoke in the air.

III

A large crowd had gathered, and they sang the songs with solemn voices. Many were forced and many more didn't understand. Yet some cried, for their remembrance was sharp and sad.

Some elderly people understood the reality of this date, but none of the younger ones seemed to understand them. And they sang on.

The preacher preached a message that was listened to but not heard, and then they rose to sing a final song. But halfway through the second chorus, as their solemnity began to fade, a young boy made his way slowly toward the monument. In his hands he held a bouquet of red poppies. The crowd was hushed as he lay his epitaph to the soldiers of the past at their feet. And a tear slowly trickled down his face, just as the ashes had fallen from the barrels of the guns . . . so many years ago.

DON'T BLAME ME!

It seems as though no-one in the family does anything wrong. On the other hand, everyone does everything right.

Many families have developed certain phantoms to place the blame upon, such as "I. Dunno", and "Whatshisname."

Ever since I can remember, our home has harboured a fourth child -- "I. Dunno." Everyone sees him but mom. All she knows is, he's rotten.

"Who left the front door open?"

"I. Dunno."

"Who let the soap run down the drain?"

"I. Dunno."

"Who ate the banana I was saving for the cake?"

"I. Dunno."

"I. Dunno, is driving mom nuts.

He's lost two umbrellas, four pairs of boots and a bike. He has fourteen books overdue from the library, hasn't brought home a paper from school in three years, and once left a thermos of milk in the car for three weeks.

The other day the phone rang. Mom ran across the yard, cut her leg, lost a shoe and got to the phone in time to see her son hanging up.

"Who was it?" she asked breathlessly.

"I. Dunno. He hung up."

When mom told her friend about it she said, "Cheer up. I've had an invisible child for years."

"What's his name?"

"Nobody."

"Is he rotten?"

"He makes Dennis the Menace look like an angel. He destroyed a Royal Dolton figurine, tears apart the paper before anyone gets to read it, and once when I was driving the car pool to hockey, he nearly knocked me senseless with a hockey stick."

"Ha!" mom said bitterly, "you should have seen I. Dunno. He left all the lights on the other night when we went out. I don't know how much longer I can stand it."

This morning at breakfast mom said to dad, "Do you want liver for dinner this evening?"

He looked up and said, "I don't care."

That can only mean one thing. I. Dunno has a brother. But doesn't mom love whatshisname best?

A woman starts thinking of a name for her baby from the minute she knows she is carrying one. She will write it out, say it aloud, try it on her husband and friends, and embroider it on little shirts. When the baby is born she will whisper the name softly in it's ear, write it on dozens of announcements and file it in the courthouse records.

A few years and a few kids later, she can't remember who you are.

I've heard mothers go through ten or twelve names before they got the right one. (Once I wore my P.J.'s wrong side out and my mom, thinking it was a name tag, called me Sara Jane for a week)

Children seem to think there is something Freunian in the entire exercise. The old if-my-mother-really-loved-me she'd-remember-my-name trauma. This is hogwash. She loves Doug . . . Dennis . . . Dan . . . whatshisname with the same affection as she loves Lee . . . Lin . . . Lesley . . . I know who I am!.

It used to be a good day for mom when she could remember what she called us for let alone remember who we were.

When mom talked with a young married the other day, it was revealed that he was one of seven children and not once when he was growing up was he ever called by his real name. "I guess it was because there were so many of us," he said, "that it confused my mother."

I hated to shoot his theory down, but right now I'm one of two children and still get Lee . . . Ian . . . Dave . . . Lesley. Finally, in desperation, my mother will shout, "How long do I have to call you before you answer?"

I'll yell back, "Until you get it right."

"Was I close?" she'll shout.

"Lesley was somewhere in the neighbourhood."

"I always liked Lesley," she mused. "I should have named you that."

"Then why did you name me Laurie?"

"Because it was easy to remember."

In conclusion, it doesn't matter who you are or what you are. Under certain circumstances, the mother always suffers and usually with the last words --- "Don't Blame Me!"

TORNADO STRIKES

A SUMMER STORM

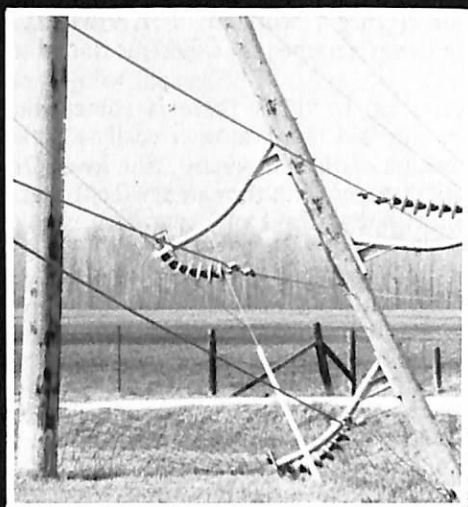

Last night a storm fell on the world
From heights of drought and heat,
The surly clouds for weeks were furled,
The air could only sway and beat.

The beetles clattered at the blind,
The hawks fell twanging
The hawks fell twanging from the sky,
The west unrolled a feathery wind,
And the night fell sullenly.

The storm leaped roaring from it's lair,
Like the shadow of doom,
The poignard lightning searched the air,
The thunder ripped the shattered gloom.

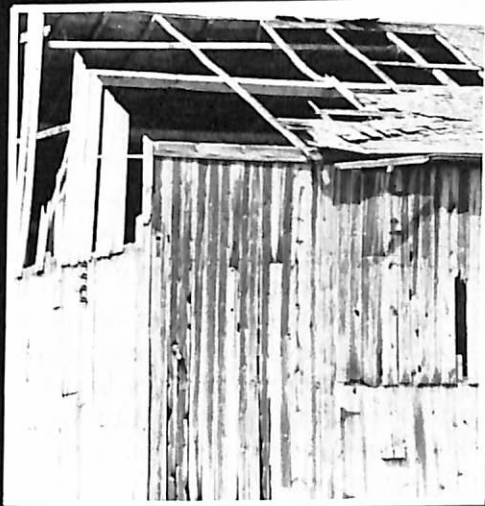

The rain came down like a roar
The rain came down with a roar like fire,
Full-voiced and clamorous and deep,
The weary world had its heart's desire,
And fell asleep.

A THUNDERSTORM

The wind begun to rock the grass
With threatening tunes and low, -
He flung a menace at the earth,
A menace at the sky.

The leaves unhooked themselves from trees
And started all abroad;
The dust did scoop itself like hands
And throw away the road.

The wagons Quickened on the streets,
The thunder hurried slow;
The lightning showed a yellow beak,
And then a livid claw.

The birds put up the bars to nests,
The cattle fled to barns;
There came one drop of giant rain,
And then, as if hands

That held the dams had parted hold,
The waters wrecked the sky,
But overlooked my father's house,
Just quartering a tree.

THE PROBLEM OF PINBALL

I just love going to the neatest pinball arcades. It's so exciting saving all of mankind from multitudes of hostile aliens and sinister forces. But, since last Friday, I think things have gone to far.

You see, I am seriously afflicted by an addiction which is becoming increasingly prevalent in this modern world of television screens and computer circuitry. I'm a "video junkie".

All week I was looking forward to the time when I'd finally be free, Friday night, and I'd be able to get my hands back on the firing button of my faithful loser cannon.

Eventually the last bell rang. I rode the bus home, and in no time managed to talk my parents into letting me borrow the '74 "Scamp" for the night. I went and picked up my girlfriend, then headed straight for the familiar arcades of Grand Bend.

Once there, I practically ran into the nearest door from whence came all sorts of electronic beeps and hums. I slammed my dollar bill down on the counter, took the four precious quarters, and slipped one into the nearest "Defender" machine. After the mutants wiped me out, I tried "Missile Command", and "Space Invaders" and "Centipede." It was on my record dollars worth of those precious twenty-five cent pieces that I noticed this shady-looking character who had, as I discovered, been watching me for some twenty minutes.

Noting my attention, he stepped forward. "Good evening," he said, "Mr. Mike Lithgow, I presume?" and at my surprised look he continued. "I'm with the Canadian Armed Forces. You've amazing ability with these machines, our battle simulators. Congratulations, you've just been drafted."

TWICE AROUND

IMPRESSIONS OF AUTUMN

Since my father died, I left for my morning walk around the farm. I liked to be alone. It gave me time to think about the good times I had with my father. I just can't believe that my father is never coming home. It seems like a dream but it's not.

The cold, crisp wind of autumn blew against my face. I zipped up my coat and continued my journey. I decided to stroll by the pond and see the bridge my father had built.

I arrived at the pond and sat on the bridge. The sun shone off the crystal, clear water and blinded me. I tried to resist the sparkling, golden beauty of the sun's image that reflected off the water; it gave me a headache. I stood up and leaned on the railing of the bridge. Memories of the past started to haunt me.

I remembered when I was a little girl. My father used to take me fishing off the bridge. We would talk for hours. We never caught any fish. I recalled the time I asked my father why we never caught any fish and he laughed and said that there wasn't any fish in the pond. I could not understand what we went fishing for. I smiled at the memory.

Tears filled my eyes. I walked towards the woods. As I approached the woods I could see clouds forming in the sky. I glanced back at the pond.

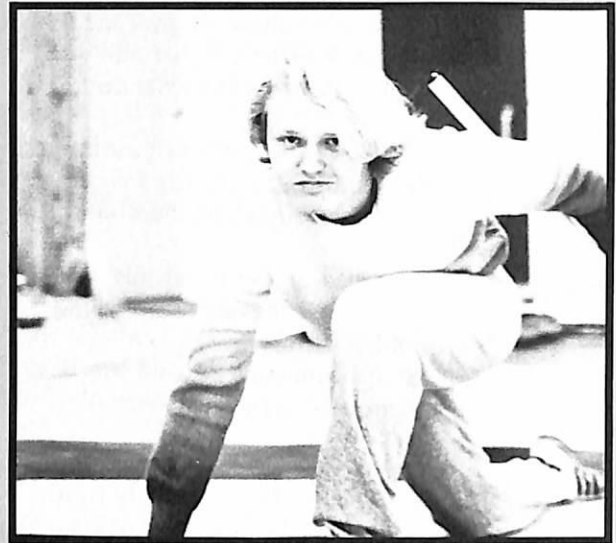

Leaves were scattered all over the ground. Gold, brown, and red leaves that added colour to the dull, dismal forest. The leaves seemed to come to life as the wind blew them across the forest floor. The bare branches of the trees looked like bony, gnarled hands of a witch. I peered up at the sky. It was turning black. I decided to head back to the house.

Lightning flashed. Thunder roared, breaking the silence. Rain pelted down from the sky. I raced towards the house. When I reached the house I thought of my father. The storm outside was like the storm inside of me.

ROTARY EXCHANGE

'82-'83

HAROLD RINGEL

This year our exchange student, Harold Ringel was from West Germany. He arrived in August of '82 and remained through till July of '83.

Harold became involved in many school activities. He joined the Curling Club and the Senior Boys Volleyball team. An avid photographer, Harold could always be found in the dark room developing pictures. His fascination with the camera inspired him to join the Camera Club. He was elected as president for the 82/83 school year. He had intended to join the Cross Country Ski team, but due to the inabundance or lack of snow it fizzled out.

In March, Harold spent two weeks down in Florida enjoying the sun and a reunion with his parents who were vacationing there also.

After sitting down and getting to know Harold, you found yourself appreciating his good sense of humour and sincere personality. He was easy going and made a lot of friends during his Rotarian exchange. We hope that he has enjoyed his stay and will remember it as a fun and enriching experience.

GOOD LUCK IN THE FUTURE HAROLD!

KICK THE JUNK FOOD HABIT

I sincerely hope that we have published a book to be proud of, for this and many more years to come. Certainly a task not to be taken lightly; I extend my best wishes to next years staff. Also I would like to thank our staff advisor, Mr. Jensen, the entire yearbook staff and the camera bugs who donated time and or effort to this years book. Also I feel you the students deserve thanks; as do the teaching staff, secretaries and custodial personnel of the school for their contributions to our completion of this book.

Best wishes and good-luck in the future. May this book be cherished for its memories.

Sincerely
Bob Armstrong

Another school year has passed and one more edition of the North Lambton Yearbook has been published. I hope that we have captured all of the moments that you will remember in years to come. To produce a yearbook patience, hard work, and a great deal of time is required from it's staff and adviser. I would like to thank our staff for fulfilling it's role and to all of the people who made it possible for this book to meet the presses.

A special thanks to Mr. Jensen for keeping the pages turning and for sharing his knowledge of photography.

I would like to thank my friends for making this year one of my most enjoyable at North Lambton. To all those returning next year I wish you Good Luck. To all those moving on I hope you find happiness and success.

A yearbook is made to last forever. Cherish these memories always.

Sincerely
Bob Metcalfe
